Disco and French house is what this collection is all about, and once again we're talking mainly construction kits, but there are plenty of single hits and loops included as well. There are 12 construction kits in all that first feature the whole mix before breaking down into each part. So for a typical kit you'll get the drum parts played out as loops, plus individual hits for those who want to reconstruct them themselves, the instrumental backing separately as a whole, before breaking that down into constituent parts, as well as any bass, keys, wah guitar and the like. Finishing off the collection are a wealth of extra loops, including over 60 drum loops, around 90 bass, guitar, flute, clav, organ and e-piano licks and over 220 single drum and percussion hits. It's a pain that the tempo isn't consistent throughout, choosing to meander between 125 to 130bpm, so the kits won't instantly mix and match (no problem for those using Live, ACID and so on), but as a collection you can't really ask for more in that funky, chunky disco style. 9 out of 10
